The Lincoln Collection at the Dixon Public Library

We are very proud of our Lincoln Collection at DPL. There has been a separate collection of books and pamphlets about Lincoln here for many years. This was substantially added to in 1987 when the library received a large gift of materials from Howard Engelbrecht of Oregon, IL. For 30 years much of the collection was housed in The Lincoln Room, which had been the Director's office until 1969, although there were other Lincoln titles throughout the non-fiction, biography, and even fiction sections of the library. In 2017 the collection was gathered together on new shelves next to our beautiful arch window on the main floor, re-cataloged and relabeled, and made readily accessible to anyone who is interested.

There are two parts of the collection which can't be checked out: our Lincoln pamphlets are stored in magazine boxes, behind the main adult circulation desk, and some items are stored in our vault due to their rarity. These may be consulted within the library only.

On the following pages is a list of over 500 different titles that the library holds on Lincoln. We hope that you find this list useful. We will keep it up to date, as we add new titles. If you have any questions or suggestions for specific items we might add to this collection, please address those to the Director of the Dixon Public Library, Antony Deter.

One other thing that might be of interest to the Lincoln enthusiast is the book "Lincoln in Dixon, which is published by the Dixon Public Library. It was written by former director Nancy Gilfillan with local historian Duane Paulsen, and was reissued in 2017. Copies can be checked out or purchased at the library for $5.00.
